Marathon records fall

For now, let's look at marathon achievements.

In recent weeks we have congratulated Bob Lane for an outstanding new M75 Australian record in the Tokyo marathon; and Dean Menzies, who broke the AMA M35 marathon record with a brilliant 2:17:41 in February.

Bob ran 3:33:26, was first out of 117 in his age group, and 66th out of 312 Australians.

To set our new M35 record Dean had to overcome the outstanding performance by Jim Langford almost 44 years ago.

The longevity of this record time is tribute to Jim's outstanding prowess - which is little surprise to Masters clubmates who have witnessed his distance supremacy over decades of club running.

Jim opened up (reluctantly!) to tell Vetrin the backstory of his record.

"My time of 2:18:08 was set at Herne Hill on August 12, 1979, and it just happened to be my 35th birthday.

"At that time Masters (Vets) Athletics started at 40 years of age, but you could join at 35 and be classed as a pre-vet. As I did not arrange to join Masters in the morning of the twelfth my time was not recognised as a Masters record. (You had to be a member to gain a record. That has changed somewhat today.)

"However, my time was regarded as an open record for the age group, at that time.

"I finished seventh in that race, mainly due to four invited Japanese runners competing. They were all in front of me. The race was won by Robert de Castella in just his second marathon, after winning the Victorian title earlier in the year. I led for much of the race but faded quite badly in the later stages.

My best

"I consider my best marathon performance to be my 2:19:29 effort in winning the Australian title. That was held in Brisbane, a year earlier, August 6, 1978. It was quite a hot day.

"Jon Stanley was second with a time of 2:24:06 and this could be the biggest winning margin for Australian Marathon championships."

GERARD Hill, 8km winner, presented scorers with a dilemma, signing in first as visitor, then remembering he was a member, but getting his number wrong. Never mind, they always cope! But Gerard also set an amazing 3:27 pace! That's him in our start pic above, flying into the lead and showing a clean pair of heels from the off.

Below, start was delayed while the clock was wrestled into submission. I think someone splashed water on it. Don Lombardi, a parkrun Director of much experience, and his crew ran a great event; thanks to them all. VW

Where's Waffle?

Hi Vic,

TRENDS in ecology and evolution have recommended that the word 'fitness' should no longer be used as it discriminates against the disabled. They have also called for 'fit' to be banned along with female, male, mother and father; and God can no longer be called HE. But at this stage a replacement title (for HIM) is indefinite.

Where are they now?

DUNNO, but here's a start

This picture, lifted from the satirical Betoota Advocate (who knows where they nicked it) bears marked resemblance to a respected club member, surgeon, one-time team doctor for our overseas contingent, and regular health correspondent for Vetrun. I'm not saying it IS John Bell. Could be though. If so John, m.i.a. since a few recent mishaps, as well as his recent marriage is looking very well, if a trifle hirsute. Betoota used the pic with a story about a new way to play the Monopo-

So can the club can no longer use 'fitness' in the job description?

Good last issue with an increase in items as against results.

Many years ago in the era of low club numbers, the magazine had a section entitled 'Where are they now?' - by Waffle.

This showed some recognition of older members and let the youngsters know there was a history in the club. Sadly Waffle is no longer with us, so nor is the article.

Cheers, Rob (Shand)

ly board game. They also placed it alongside the 'go to jail' image, which was a bit cheeky, I reckon!

Now, come on old-timers, tell us where you all are and what you're up to.

Daggy dads save planet!

WORLD-WIDE, 100 billion garments are made every year and 92 million tonnes of them end up in landfill. So it was good to hear that old Masters uniforms can still be worn on track and field.

Of course there was never any doubt about the Sunday morning dress code. Anything goes, as long as it's decent, and carries your club number and a computerised tag.

The glorious display of vintage apparel on show each Sunday is a joy to behold, adding colour and lustre to the Perth scene.

Here, daggy dads are welcome.

Vetrin has long championed colourful shorts, for instance, fighting hard against sports shops' campaign to wrap our nether parts in black and blue.

We have enough of that in our bruises, thanks very much.

Personally I take great comfort in the T&F ruling. When I eventually return to combat, I reckon I'll get away with the favourite 1990s singlet. Yes, it does have WAVAC back and front, but the colours are right!

Like most blokes I spend little time fashion shopping. Those

'New logo - this does not represent a new uniform as such. Previous uniform remains valid for State and National competition.'

lucky enough to be married leave all that to their spouse, and she (or he?) makes sure we wear some semblance of the up-to-date - this year's tee-shirt style, for instance, or outrageous socks.

My one struggles valiantly to modernise me but it's a battle. I'm still wearing a lot of stuff that came with us from the UK in 1989, even though tweed and sheepskin isn't really Perth-friendly.

I do hope readers will join the dag-movement and help save much-loved togs from landfill. My next project is an original club singlet, inherited from Maurice Johnstone, via Frank Smith, that carries the very first club badge. Must check if that's acceptable at the Champs.

Great club runner Don Caplin sports our first badge in early Perth Marathon.

Yes, careful Mark; those tannoy's can bite the unwary!

Let Healthy Older Adults Run!

INCREASES in physical activity promote good health, yet exercise and particularly running are under-prescribed for adults over age 65. The authors call for more prescriptions, incentives and recognition for endurance exercise for older adults, which would increase healthy lifespans and inspire younger adults to run. They describe how new run-walk programmes and shoe technologies allow older adults to succeed at endurance running, something not previously identified in the medical literature.

MANY adults, including some adults over age 60, eager to extend their years of healthy life have adopted running as their primary exercise. The Sports and Fitness Industry Association reports approximately 50 million United States adults participate in some form of running. Many physicians, however, caution against it. Only a third of adults report a physician ever telling them to increase their physical activity. Thus, fewer than a quarter of adults exercise regularly. To improve this physicians should prescribe physical activities taking into consideration any health limitations. Recording steps taken, stairs climbed or mileage achieved during patient visits, like weight lost, is a powerful performance motivator. To increase exercise intensity physicians can ask their patients about step cadence or running pace. Patients can determine these with easily purchased wrist devices.

Physicians should also tell adults over age 65 how many years of life, on average, they have left, something they often do not know. A 65-year-old man, for instance, has 19 years of life remaining and an 85-year-old woman has seven years. Recognition by patients of how they can enjoy these additional years with good health is another exercise motivator.

Walking is the most common adult exercise and a good starting prescription for running.

Finally, recognising endurance runners over age 65 as models of good health would counter the common and self-fulfilling expectation that ageing brings physical inactivity. A progressive decrease in running the Boston Marathon, for instance, is observed in each five-year age group from 65 to 79 and is more than can be accounted for by increasing disability.

It likely results from misinformation, barriers to participation and physicians cautioning older adults to avoid vigorous exercise. More adults over age 65 completing distance runs could inspire their peers, as well as younger adults. Life is a marathon, not a sprint. Those who regularly practice endurance running are likely to enjoy a life of joy, high productivity and good health.

sicians and health systems should remember the many health benefits of physical activity. In fact, low levels of physical activity underlie 7.8 percent of deaths in those over age 70. Physicians can prescribe and incentivise exercise to improve healthy lifespans. Indeed, the number one recommendation of the American Medical Association for healthy living in 2023 is more physical activity. We advocate that this physical activity include endurance exercise and running, which many older adults prefer.

Studies have long detected that endurance exercise reduces disability in later life and confers a survival advantage. New data place existing concerns for vigorous exercise in perspective. Physicians and the public previously believed that running caused and worsened age-related osteoarthritis, while studies now find land-based exercise improves osteoarthritic joint pain and function. Coronary artery calcification is more common in older male athletes than non-athletes, but plaque composition is calcified and more benign and exercise training still significantly reduces cardiovascular events in those studied.

Prolonged endurance training modestly increases atrial fibrillation in men ages 65-90, but it decreases by almost half the risk of stroke. The American Society of Preventive Cardiology observes that every 1 MET increase in cardiorespiratory fitness confers approximately a 16 per cent decrease in mortality. These observations support recent conclusions that increasing exercise volume beyond commonly recommended goals further improves health risks.

Running may be the best endurance exercise and is a common goal of cardiac rehabilitation programs that typically progress from slow to fast walking and then to jogging or slow running. Many rehabilitation patients have progressed to full running schedules. New studies using movement monitors show that increasing either the number of steps walked or their intensity, or both, increase the health benefits of moving.

With practice distance running is possible for most adults and many adults over age 65. Even older adults with heart failure have participated successfully in moderate intensity endurance training.

Woodbridge

THIS year it was not a handicap event as we had to switch events around, but, as always it's a lovely course out and back along the river. Well done to all our top finishers! Drew Langford and Liz Gomez blitzed the field in the 10km and Patrick Jones and Robin King took the honours in the 5km. Walkers Andrew Duncan and Karyn Tolardo were also in fine form taking out the 10km Walk while John McDonagh and Lynne Schickert led the 5km Walk.

Great effort also by all the runners who had competed in the 5km track championships the day before! I

If you haven't been to Woodbridge yet there is a handy café in the playground next to the start area. It is also the gateway to the beautiful Swan Valley – just meander up West Swan Road or Great Northern Highway to sample wineries, chocolatiers, breweries and cafés. Special thanks to my great team of helpers!

Punch your way out of a paper bag

ENGLISH boxer Freddie Mills won the world light-heavy-weight title from America's Gus Lesnevich in 1946. He became Britain's biggest post-WW2 boxing idol and a media personality after quitting the ring. No stylist, Freddie relied on two-fisted aggression, relentless pressure, and the ability to take punishment to carry him through.

But that wasn't enough when he took on a paper bag! By then Freddie was a well-loved figure on TV and film, and he good-heartedly took on the challenge for a BBC stunt. As he told Eamonn Andrews (see pic right) it was "the first fight I've ever been in, where it was in the bag."

Freddie's life ended tragically, never been proved whether he was murdered, by gangsters, or, less likely, killed himself. (Google it!)

ALL'S not well with Italian soccer club, Sampdoria, which dwells around the bottom of Serie A. Club president Massimo Ferrero has received a package containing a pig's head with a note declaring: 'Your head's next.' This follows another special delivery in January: a bullet with a note reading: 'It's blank but next time it will be real.' Remember when sport was 'only a game'?

Athletics occupies a different strata of decency and ... niceness, of course. So I know Vetrin readers will appreciate this month's collection of outstanding sporting quotes, uttered by the some of the finest performers of the day.

"I am the Greatest!"

Muhammad Ali

WELL, it would have been unwise to disagree with him; and he was probably right anyway. The quote is also title of a comedy album by the world's finest heavyweight boxer when he was still called Cassius Clay.

It was released in August 1963 - six months before he won the world heavyweight championship, publicly announced his conversion to Islam, and changed his name to Muhammad Ali. The CBS Columbia release helped establish Ali's reputation as an eloquently poetic 'trash talker'. It's also been identified as an early example of rap music and a precursor to hip hop music.

Of course, Ali was never short of great lines, such as:

"I am the greatest, I said that even before I knew I was."

"I'm so mean, I make medicine sick."

"I hated every minute of training, but I said, 'Don't quit. Suffer now and live the rest of your life as a champion.'"

Remember the Ali Shuffle? This is the Ali Sway.

Memorable State Champs

IT WAS undoubtedly one of our best. Brilliantly organised as always by Barbara, threatened bad weather didn't show and we witnessed host of close races and magnificent performances.

We all enjoyed the camaraderie, helped along by great coffee from Jeanette and great food from Margaret and the team.

Sprinters

Our sprinters excelled with some truly world class efforts. Mandy Mason ran an Australian 60m record (beating the great Julie Brims's time) and set State Records in the 100m and 200m. Adrian McKenzie was in sparkling form to topple Ernie Leseberg's 60m and 100m Australian records.

Norm Richards also had a memorable weekend, earning State Records in two jumps and two sprints. Also, Luella Jenkins is relishing her new W80 status with five State Records in sprints and throws.

Sue Coate entered almost everything and was collecting medals for most of the time she was not actually competing!

In the pentathlon she achieved

A tough day for Director Mark and his helpers, after setting a challenging course for all to enjoy. However, they should take comfort from the philosophical attitude of Bob Schickert: in effect, 'worry not, everyone had a run in great surroundings.'

We're only human, mistakes happen. Like the time I misplaced one flag and sent the entire field the wrong way through Kings Park. Vic Waters her time was better than anyone in the World has set at indoor meets.

Finally, all our volunteers and helpers were magnificent, but a special mention goes to Steve Barrie who worked tirelessly all weekend moving shades, tables and equipment around the competition sites.

WHAT a great long weekend it was for our 30 athletes who journeyed east to compete in the AMA National Championships, held for the first time at Olympic Park in Homebush.

Leading the gold medal charge was Sue Coate who has hit top form at the right time in all disciplines. She won medals in no less than 13 events, including five gold, while also setting a javelin state record. But best of all Sue bagged an Australian record in the pentathlon.

800m breakthrough

Sue's 'weak link', like that of many women pentathletes, is the 800m. But over the past year or so she has rigorously followed a programme set by Barbara Blurton and knocked the best part of 20 seconds off her time, transforming her overall points score.

Also in Barbara's training group is Jenn Parker, who has excelled, despite fighting niggling injuries most of the season. Jenn hit gold in the long hurdles in the very tough W50 age group as well as gaining medals in the jumps.

No-one was surprised when our club secretary, Gillian Young, bettered her own recent mark by some 13 seconds to reset her W75 Steeplechase World record to 11:01.5.

800m relay. Sharon was our star in the World Championships in Finland last year bringing home two gold medals after close finishes in the 800m and 1,500m. In Sydney, Sharon also had tight finishes in those events but this time was at the wrong end and had to settle for silver medals.

Our men could not quite match the dizzy heights reached by the women.

David Carr was of course a stalwart winning everything he entered in the M90 group but he is not in the World Record form that saw him become World Masters Athlete of the year in 2022. With modest times – for him – he is perhaps saving himself for what will be a tough campaign at the World Indoors in Poland later in March.

Morland Smith also bagged a bunch of golds in the M85. He is a great ambassador for the sport putting in top rate performances despite his sight impairment. And in the M70 Michael Byrne excelled with a gold and two silvers in the sprints and middle distance.

Walkers

As always, we sent a great team of walkers to these Championships. All seven of them brought home medals, with golds going to Karyn Tolardo, John McDonagh and Victor Munoz.

In the jumps Brenda Painter and Lynne Schickert took all the golds on offer.

Throwers

Our team of throwers certainly did not let the team down. Low in numbers but high in quality, Bev

Hamilton and Ossi Igel both won three golds, with Bev getting a State Record in the Throws Pentathlon into the bargain.

Awards

Our men and women shared the spoils at the AMA Awards Ceremony on the Sunday evening. As expected David Carr won best athlete, while Mandy Mason was part of the quartet that won the multis/relay category for their World Record 4 x 100m set
