The game must go on!

Nottingham Forest physio: "It's no good, boss. He's badly concussed and doesn't know who he is."

Brian Clough: "Good. Tell him he's Pelé and get him back on."

MAGA Mug

American football star Nick Bosa fined $11,000 for wearing a Make America Great Again cap in a TV interview. The San Francisco 49ers defensive end broke league rules re personal messaging.

Take the money and run

Brazilian midfielder Oscar was much mocked when he, surprisingly, swapped Premier League super team Chelsea for Chinese club Shanghai Port in 2016. Who's laughing now? Eight years later he's finally leaving China ... £160 million richer.

Huh! That's peanuts! Major League Baseball star Juan

"I keep telling you, Mr Olmroyd - an injury resulting from a late tackle in the 1914 Christmas Day football match does not qualify as a war wound."

Soto, 26, signed the richest contract in sport history: a 15-year $765 million deal ($51 million a year) with the New York Mets. The talented Dominican won't even have to pay to move house: he's quitting the New York Yankees.

Net loss

More girls now play soccer than netball in the UK. It's 16% to 15.4%. In other games, running gymnastics and hockey are on the slide while swimming, cricket and skateboarding are more popular.

Slackers

Two slackliners set a new world record by walking between two hot air balloons at an altitude of 2,500 metres. Germans Friedi Kühne and Lukas Irmeler smashed the record of 1,900 metres set in Brazil in 2021.

Don't bet on it

England's new wicketkeeper Ollie Robinson has same birthday as team mate, bowler Ollie Robinson. The Daily Drone's AI chatbot reckons the odds of two England cricketers sharing a name and a birthday is 1 in 1.3 trillion.

Crashing Star

West Ham striker Michail Antonio is recovering after being trapped in his wrecked £260,000 Ferrari after a spectacular crash. He has form. In 2019 he ploughed a £210,000 Lamborghini into a Balham, London front garden. The 'star' footballer clambered out of that wreck wearing a snowman costume.
